This is a book I wrote. Because I wrote it, I had to figure out what to put on the back cover to explain what it is. I tried to write a long, third-person summary that would imply how great the book is and also sound vaguely authoritative—like maybe someone who isn't me wrote it—but I soon discovered that I'm not sneaky enough to pull it off convincingly.

"... IS GREAT BOOK"

So I decided to just make a list of things that are in the book:

- * Pictures
- * Words
- * Stories about things that happened to me
- * Stories about things that happened to other people because of me
- * Eight billion dollars *
- * Stories about dogs
- * The secret to eternal happiness *

*These are lies. Perhaps I have underestimated my sneakiness!

"Funny and smart as hell."

Parece que deveria haver algum tipo de introdução
isto é Aqui está!
 uma recriação de um desenho que fiz quando tinha cinco anos:
 À
 um tipo com um braço normal e um braço absurdamente rabugento. Se olharmos realmente de perto, podemos ver o braço normal debaixo do rabisco. O que se pode ver que, no original, o braço de rabisco continua por todo o comprimento de um rolo de papel de talho. Comecei numa ponta e depois continuei até
 ficar sem papel.
 Lembro-me de o desenhar e pensar. Isto
 de loucos...
 Até posso acreditar quanto tempo
 o braço deste tipo. Se eu não tivesse ficado sem papel, quem sabe o que teria acontecido.
 Na sua totalidade, o braço ocupa mais papel do que este livro. Teoricamente, poderia ter cortado o rolo de papel de aSougueiro em quadrados, agrafei-os juntos e criei o Squiggly Arm Book.
 No entanto, não o fiz.
 Considere essa possibilidade, mas, no final, decidi que não podia esperar realisticamente escapar impune.
 Quando tinha dez anos de idade, eu
 a letter to my future me and I buried it in my backyard. Seventeen years later, I remembered I should remember to dig him up two years earlier. I was looking forward to having a nostalgic glimpse in my childhood. Perhaps I would marvel at my own innocence or see the first glimmer of my current aspirations. Turns out it made me feel really weird about myself. The letter was traced on green pedals in the third of a utility account. My ten-year-old self obviously hadn't spent much time planning his presentation. I had probably just walked through the kitchen and suddenly realized that it was entirely possible to write a letter to my future self. The overwhelming excitement of this achievement probably made me go into picnics and short circuit, making me unable to locate appropriate writing implements. There was no time for this kind of thing. I, however, managed to fight through Chaos fog and impulse long enough to find a stub of palm and a paper surface to mash it against. The letter begins like this: Dear 25 years (note: Not Dear 25 years old and/or Dear 25 years old self, only Dear 25years old, 25th years old) What is Your favorite dog? You got a job betraying dogs? Is Murphy still alive? What are you doing?
 favourite food?? Are the parents still alive? I feel like
 important to note the order of these questions. Obviously, the dog-related issues were my main concern (Murphy was my family's dog), followed closely by the need to know my future favorite food (I feel the double question marks speak to how important I thought the question was). I just stopped to ask myself if my parents survived. The letter continues with a section entitled "Over Me".
 Allie and I are ten years old. I have blue hair and eyes. My dog slumped
 a German latte. My second favarium dog
 a My third dog is a Dobberman Pincher. This is... it's...For various reasons, the first
 I apparently thought my future I wouldn't be aware of my name or eye color. The second thing is
 the fact that I just lowered into my favorite dog rations at the end, as if it were as important to my identity as the other things. As if my past self imagined my future self in the yard above the earth turned, squeezing my letter and shouting:
 But what dogs did I like ??? How am I supposed to understand my identity without knowing which dogs I liked when I was ten?
 I paused in writing at that point to draw several pictures of what appear to be German shepherds. Below the German shepherds, I wrote the three most disturbing words throughout the letter - three words that revealed more about my understanding of reality than anything else I have discovered about my inage. WOOLi, at the bottom of the letter, I had taken my crayon spoof and used it to create the following sentence: - Please write back. Judging by the thick and purposeful lines in each letter, I was applying a truly impressive amount of pressure to the crayon. The sincerity of the request is unmistakable. When I asked my future, my favorite dog
 or if my mother and father were still alive, I actually hoped to get answers. And apparently, I was still hoping to be ten when I got those answers. Please write back. I imagine myself patiently in the yard, day after day, thinking, anytime now. . . It's going to happen soon, I just know it. . . The hour trip is a complex subject of which I do not expect a ten-year-old child to fully understand, but this is more than just a serious misunderstanding of time travel. I definitely don't definitely not a time traveler, but in case I am, I decided to write back. In fact, I decided to write letters to various of my past i, because I felt that there were important things that I could explain to myself or things That I could warn myself. ONE ONE I to start with a letter to my two-year-old self. It's de ar two-year-old girl. It's not the face cream
 As much as it looks cold, as much as you experience it will always be face cream and it will never be cold. I promise I wouldn't lie to you about this. Honestly, there will never be frost. For fuck's sake, please stop. I need those bodies that are ruining it. Dear four-year-old girl, allow me to preface this by saying I don't know why you started eating salt in the first place, but regardless of the precipitating circumstances, it's still there. This is how you realized that eating large amounts of salt Really, really, uncomfortably salty, you should have stopped eating salt. This is the solution. The solution is not
 Start eating chili to cancel the salt. It now finds itself in this situation several times, and each time it gets stuck in this cycle totally avoidable. He has had more than enough experience to come to the conclusion that the pepper is not
 the opposite of salt alone, but somehow it seems to remain stubbornly unaware of this fact. To reiterate, no matter how much pepper she eats, she doesn't undo the absurd amount of salt she ate before she did. The only thing you're gonna be able to eat is pepper.
 Make your mouth taste like pepper and salt. Likewise, switch back to want salt cancel the burning of the pepper you ate to cancel the original salt. How is it?
 that this is
 Is it hard t o understand? You can stop whenever you want. As a follow-up note, you really need to start learning from your mistakes. Believe me, I know what happens when they find fences.
 In the next year, and could pass without that alone
 I've got an electric shock. Dear five-year-old, what the fuck is wrong with you? Normal children don't have imaginary friends dead. Normal children don't get each of their chicken sticks and then get naked and bleeding in the darkened door until the room until someone passes and ask what they are doing. In addition, normal children They say: "I wanted to know what all my blood would look like. The normal children also don't watch him to their parents sleep from the corner of the room. Mom was really marked by the exorcist when she was younger, and she doesn't know how to deal with her increasingly frightening behavior. Please stop. Please stop. Dear six years old, you are having an absurdly difficult time learning the letter R. You practice all the time, and you have mastered all the other letters in the alphabet - both capital and lowercase - but for reasons Besides my understanding, it just destroys you. Look at that. How does that happen? How do you ruin something so bad? The first is understandable, but what happens to that medium? How did that extra protrusion get there? And look at the tiny rict - that you have four lumps. I'm not a protuberance expert, but that's too much. I think if you took some time to relax and really look at the letter R, you will see that it is not as complicated as you are doing it. Dear seven years, look at the other children around you. Do you see how they are wearing clothes? This is because they are seven years and they all realized that it is no longer appropriate to take their clothes out in public. But you didn't understand that, you do. People tried to explain to you. Their teachers tried, their parents tried, even the other students expressed discomfort with their persistent and unexplained nudity. But you just don't stop. Why do you want to be naked so badly? You really know why? Are you overtaken by forces beyond your control that makes you do this? Regardless, clothing is a reality you need to accept. There's no gaps for that. YouTake off your clothes and hide in the corner waiting for notice. You can make teachers let you get naked burying yourself in the sandbox and your clothes are in a pile by your side. They know it. Ten-year-old guy, Baa160; Wow, you really like dogs. In fact, you like dogs so much that I'm i'm not even sure if that's
 healthy emotionally. It may be normal to love dogs a lot, or be really interested in dogs, but you go very, very
 out of it. Normal children don't don't walk by a pretending to be a dog almost as much as you, for example. You're ten years old. This makes people think about your progress in development when you grow and atomic for them.
 Joshua 160; An even more troubling
 the path of obstetrics. All right, you want to train your dog to run through obstacle track. That's pretty normal. What doesn't seem normal
 make your mother spend time crawling through the course of four, several and several times. You're making the dog think she did something wrong to make you like this. Now that we've gone out of the way, allow me to answer your questions:
 Louis160; Do you still like dogs? Yes, but not as much as you do. I'm a few a few years ago, he's developed a healthy relationship with the dogs. What your favorite dog? I don't know. This may come as a surprise to you, but knowing exactly where every dog ration ranks on my list of favorites is urgent je it used to be. Do you have a job to transport dogs? I can
 to train my own dogs, let's more other people's dogs. Is Murphy still alive? I don't know if you're optimistic or if you're not realizing that dogs usually don't live to be twenty-five, but you're preparing for a big disappointment
 what's your favorite food? Nachos! What's
 a lot, because in the future, you care about your dysfunction and you don't care yourself, then you end up eating a bunch of nachos. Mom and Dad are still alive? Actually, you just ended up being Batman, so we had to have them write for the purposes of history. The dear 13-year-old, I think everyone was relieved when he started to come out of his unhealthy obsession with dogs. Unfortunately, it is now thought that a sorcerer. I know this because I found your collection of sorcery. How can dijon mustard and then eat it makes someone
 love you? First of all, I thought your extensive initial experiences with the ingestion of unfood substances would prevent you from trying something like this. Secondly, no one
 love you until
 pairs of doing things that trying to make them love you by eating mustard. Other iterations of my past ethon, Thank you for not being so strange that I felt I had to address you personally in a letter from the future. A persistent fear of mine was confirmed last night: my dog could be a little retarded. I've been thinking about her intelligence since I adopted her and later found out that she couldn't figure out how the stairs worked.
 I blamed his
 inability for the fact that he spent most of his life confined to a small kennel because its previous owners could not control it. I figured maybe she hadn't been exposed to stairs yet. Accepting the noble responsibility of educating this poor and underprivileged creature, I spent hours guiding her up and down the stairs, placing cookies on each step to attract her and celebrate any sign of progress. When she still couldn't successfully navigate the stairs at the end of her first week with me, I blamed her for her extreme lack of motor control. This dog is uncoordinated in a way that suggests that its canine lineage is stater with traces of a species
 with a different number of paws, such as perhaps a starfish or a snake.
 The next clue came when I started trying to train her. Thought Difficult can be the training of a dog? It seems easy enough. I was wrong. Do not do not It is training my dog in a strangely difficult way, it is also from breaking the heart. She wants to please me so much. Every fiber of her being shuddered with the desire to do a good job. She is very struggling. But when she turns her head in an extreme angle she can not produce an epiphany that changes life, she usually only makes short circuits and rolls back. In the last two months, she made some progress, but it was painfully slow and easily forgotten. Still, I was living under the assumption that maybe my dog had only a hidden capacity of intelligence
 that everything I had to do was work hard and maybe woke up one day and be intelligent and able as a dog Normal
 but one night I was sitting on my sofa to navigate unlocked on the internet when I looked up and noticed my dog lick the floor. Just lick and lick. In the beginning I thought maybe it had been around something there, but the licking did not seem to be located on a single place. Instead, she walked through the room to look apparently at random. She lay aside and continued to lick the side of her mouth as she looked directly at me. At that moment I realized that I needed to know for sure if my dog was late or not.
 I searched Google
 e? "How to say if your dog was late e? And after a little research, I found a dog QI test that seemed quite legacy. It involved testing the ability of your CAOÃO to solve some very bond problems, how to figure out how to get out under a blanket.
