A London-based design studio specializing in limited edition decorative art and lighting, we cascade introduced its first serial product, lifting geometry, to the show. Both functional and fully hypnotisizing, the square wooden mirrors are incorporated with neon lights in geometric shapes, which create models of repeated three-dimensional light, for an original experience, if slightly disoriented, reflective. WearoCascade. Counting the OH-cosi-British tradition of Excellent, Maximalist Wallpaper, London based artist and designer Helen B Wilson offers a contemporary spin on Chinoiserie with its imaginative prints that are hand painted in canvas, then digitally printed The background and a range of fabrics in the UK Wilson introduced its new folia bird print (pictured) to the tent as the second, rather wildly the Witch & Watchman collection, which founded earlier this year. witchandwatchman.com by the playful giraffe console table and long legs in a discreet shelving unit called a room divider, the brand of British and new furniture showed a simple and absurd collection, handmade in the U.K. Steel and plywood. Informative by the British-Finnish duo Jo Wilton and Mirka Grohn, the designs have a simplicity of Midcentury-Scandinavia, with a distinct Britishly (when it comes to color and unexpected lines) sense of humor. ANDNEW.CO.UKMATHEETH and Andrew Galvin are the Yorkshire-based brothers behind this sensible series of craft oak furniture that are based on a long family tradition of carpentry and cabinetmaking. The collection, which includes several stools, cocktails and dining tables and a lonely dayport, has a largely residential feeling, but the twosome is looking at the contract market with the introduction of the cross-section, a contemporary pub dining table with Banco and matching stools, hand made of steamed beech and walnut with water lillies. Their perfectly imperfect stool was picked up by English Mega Home-reseller Guarisci, perhaps a sign of bigger things to come for this family business founded in 2012. Galvinbrothers.co.ukworking exclusively with textile designer graduate of universities throughout the UK The London-based textile company Flock introduced some new bold prints to its expanding collection of bright and geometric fabrics, digitally printed in Lancashire on sheets and velvet. The founders Jenny Wingfield and Johanna Marks met in 2010 when they worked in the Department of Freedom of Furniture, and soon afterwards they configured the flock to support and celebrate young textile designers, who often struggle to obtain recognition in the industry. All designerslocks receive royalties for each meter of their fabric that sells and has their name printed on the top. flock.org.uk Image: Liquor.com / Tim Nusog Bulldog Gin is an assertive London Dry Gin with a robust juniper profile that rises in cocktails. It's that arguability that makes it work wellAutumn themed cocktail, where he is married with lemon, maple syrup and fresh pear. The modern English comes from Michael Waterhouse, a long time since New York City Bartender and bar consultant. The drink has a unique approach to its construction - an acidic gin like a gimbello flavored with pear is not at all unhardened, but in general it means fresh squeeze lemon juice, simple syrup and a kind of liqueur or a pear syrup. Instead, Waterhouse uses lemon wedges, maple syrup and a slice of pear, all confused together with the Bulldog Gin. Thanks to global markets and imported goods, you can make this drink at any time of the year. However, it will be the best in the end of the summer at the beginning of the fall, when the local pears are at their high season. The funny thing about using fresh pear rather than a liqueur or even a syrup is that you can play with your favorites to see which you go best in the drink. Try to mix it, using something like an Anjou, Bartlett or Bosc and seeing what suits your imagination best. Likewise, feel free to trade the Bulldog Gin for something that works best for you, or whatever you have available. Something lighter and more floral like Hendrick and something subtler like Plymouth will make a final product drastically different than Bulldog. While a cinnamon stick is called for a contour, it did not win the flavor of the drink too unless you leave it in the glass for a prolonged time. Feel free to omit it if desired. 1/4 fresh pear, peeled, sown and cubed 2 lemon wedges 1/2 ounces boltdog gin garnish: cinnamon stick (optional) in a shaker, smooth all ingredients except the Gin. Add the gin and fill with ice and stir until it is well refrigerated. Double effort in a glass of coupe. Garnish with a cinnamon stick. Vote for this recipe I don't like at all. It's not the worst. Of course, that will. I'm a fan-"I'd recommend it. Surprising! I love it! Thank you for your score! During Britain and Ireland, the full breakfast is well known.
