SMAGG, [1] An epic fantasy adventure film directed by the director of New Zealand Peter Jackson. Released December 13, 2013, it is the second episode in the series of films in three parts based on the novel The Hobbit by J. R. R. Tolkien. [1] The Hobbit follows the search for a loving hobbit at home, an imaginary humanoid, diminutive, to win a treasure share guarded by the dragon, Smaug. Sheeran has a devotion for a lifetime to Tolkien's novel. [2] His grandfather has a first edition copy. He was the father of Sheeran's first book he read him as a child, [2] and the first book he read himself. [3] On 5 November 2013, Sheeran announced the involvement of him in the soundtrack in a series of places online, which included Thanksgiving him Jackson for the opportunity. [3] It is also a fan of Jackson's films. [4] Jackson was presented to Sheeran's music by his daughter, Katie, [5] who attended Sheep concert in Wellington, New Zealand, in March 2013. [4] Jackson, having learned about Sheeran With respect to his films, [5] he met the lunch the following day in which they exchanged e-mail addresses. [4] At the end of 2013, Jackson and Fran Walsh, who co-produced and co-wrote the film, were looking for an artist who would write and record the song. Following Katie's advice, they decided to touch Sheeran. [6] Jackson sent a message to Sheeran, who was on the island of the Mediterranean of Ibiza who participates in a wedding ceremony, [5] [7] Asked if he would be interested in the project, who accepted Sheeran. Starting from London, Sheeran and the manager of him, Stuart, arrived in Wellington within 48 hours. [6] Writing and production Park Road Post, a film post-production plant located in Wellington, New Zealand, where Sheeran wrote and product "I see fire". Sheeran to focus on the end of the movie: "Focus the last 10 minutes. This is what the song needs to reflect [...] write a song that takes the public in hand and leads them from half ground Reality. "[8] Capturing his reaction to watch the film, [5] Sheeran immediately started writing the texts" From the point of view of being a dwarf ". [8] Jackson requested a folk and sheeran song, which is "known for the songs that you don't In a Hobbit movie, "he tried to follow in that direction. [5] Sheeran wrote and recorded, in a single day, most of the elements present in the released version. [6] Additional revisions were made in a course Three days that Sheeraan remained in the structure. [2] Sheeran revealed that the complete freedom was given in the released version. notes: "[Jackson] knows the colors and models of what the song should be rather than as the melody should go." [2] Sheeran also produced the song, playing all the tools except for the cello [9.] While having ever played the violin, he has chosen to execute him himself through the overdood. [6] Violoncellista flight flight Nigel Collins The Conchords' Added parts of cello as dictated by sheeran. Pete Cobbin by Abbey Road Studios mixed "I see Fire"; Cobbin was at the Park Road Post, at the same time, responsible for mixing the SMAUG desolation soundtrack. [6] "I see Fire" is a folk ballad, [8] characterized with the acoustic guitar with StrumMed delicacy. Sheeran revealed to have taken inspiration from the 1970s Irish Folk Band. [8] According to Entertainment Weekly Jodi Walker, the song is "touch reminds" of "The Parting Glass", a traditional Irish song that is a bonus track in the Sheeran debut album, +. [10] The themes in the hobbit are present in the lyrics of the song, which refer to "Fire, mountains and brotherhood".
